

My Child Matters: an exhibition of James Mollison's photographs at the A. Galerie

- A photographic record of the Foundation Sanofi Espoir flagship program devoted to the fight against pediatric cancer
- Exhibition open from June 11 to 29

Paris – May 13, 2019 – The Sanofi Espoir Foundation and the A. Galerie are organizing an exhibition of James Mollison's photographs relating to My Child Matters, the Foundation's flagship program dedicated to the fight against pediatric cancer.

The Sanofi Espoir Foundation's My Child Matters program was launched in 2005 with the goal of giving all children with cancer, wherever they live around the world, the same opportunities to access quality care according to international recommendations.

For the "My Child Matters" exhibition, James Mollison photographed some of the children in My Child Matters projects in Senegal, Paraguay, Colombia, Thailand, and Morocco. Taken in hospitals and patients' homes, these photographs show the realities and the faces of real patients, and tell the stories that lie behind the word "cancer." They are portraits of children and their families whose lives have been forever changed, but who, thanks to their courage and to My Child Matters, have been given their best chance of combatting this disease.

James Mollison was born in Kenya in 1973 and grew up in England. After studying Art and Design at Oxford Brookes University, and later film and photography at Newport School of Art and Design, he moved to Italy. His work has been widely published throughout the world including by Colors, The New York Times Magazine, the Guardian magazine, The Paris Review, GQ, New York Magazine and Le Monde.

The exhibition will be held from Tuesday June 11 to Saturday June 29, 2019.

The proceeds of the sale of photographs will support children suffering from cancer.

The visuals are available on the gallery website.
